TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

It is my pleasure to recommend Kumar Pranav Verma, whom I have taught in computer science at Lotus Valley International School, Noida. Over the past two years, I have witnessed his evolution into a highly motivated, thoughtful, and technically skilled learner with an exceptional ability to pursue advanced computing concepts far beyond curriculum expectations.

Pranav consistently demonstrates deep intellectual curiosity and a strong foundation in programming fundamentals. He has showcased particular excellence in Python and independently explored areas such as artificial intelligence, operating systems, and compiler design -- fields rarely touched at the high-school level. He has worked on projects like the Stacy AI healthcare assistant, InfinityX OS, and the Tidal/Delta programming languages. He frequently sought guidance to refine his logic, debug efficiently, and improve architectural decisions -- always demonstrating maturity and perseverance.

In class, Pranav is respectful, disciplined, and supportive of peers. He collaborates without hesitation and shares knowledge generously, often guiding classmates through difficult programming concepts. His problem-solving approach -- systematic, curious, and methodical -- is a strong indicator of future success in a research-driven, technology-focused environment.

Pranav embodies the qualities of a driven computer science student: curiosity, resilience, humility, and a willingness to challenge himself. I am confident he will thrive in rigorous academic settings and contribute positively to any campus community. I strongly recommend him for admission to your institution.
